

Contributors

Cynthia Appl (Ph.D., University of Pennsylvania) is Associate Professor of German at Baker University. She teaches all levels of German and chairs the Department of Language and Literature at Baker University.

Pennylyn Dykstra-Pruim (Ph.D., University of Wisconsin-Madison) teaches German culture and language at Calvin College in Grand Rapids, Michigan. Her recent publications include Auf geht's! Beginning German Language and Culture.

Peter Ecke (Ph.D., University of Arizona) is an Associate Professor in the Department of German Studies and the Interdisciplinary Ph.D. Program in Second Language Acquisition and Teaching at the University of Arizona.

Jean E. Godsall-Myers (Ph.D., Bryn Mawr College) is Associate Professor of Humanities at Widener University, where she teaches all levels of German. Her research interests span medieval through modern German literature and culture, and her publications include a medieval anthology, articles and book reviews. She has presented at regional, national, and international conferences. She has received stipends from CIEE, DAAD, and Fulbright, and in 2003 received an AATG/Goethe Institute Certificate of Merit. She is a member of AATG, the Anna Seghers Gesellschaft, the German Society of Pennsylvania, the German Studies Association, MLA, and the Society for Medieval German Studies.

Charles J. James is Professor of German and Curriculum & Instruction at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He has published articles in Die Unterrichtspraxis, Foreign Language Annals, and other journals. He has served on the Executive Council of AATG as well as President of the Wisconsin Chapter of AATG. He is the 2004 recipient of the "Distinguished Foreign Language Educator Award" from the Wisconsin Association of Foreign Language Teachers.

Erin Joyce (Ph.D., Pennsylvania State University) is Associate Professor of French at Baker University. She teaches all levels of French. Her research interests include FL writing, assessment, and the pedagogy of culture. She is Past President of the Kansas Foreign Language Association.

John F. Lalande II (Ph.D., Pennsylvania State University) is Professor of German and Chair of the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures at the State University of New York, College at Oswego. A member of the AATG since 1974, he remains passionate about his teaching, research, and service, and is grateful for the modest successes he has enjoyed in those same endeavors.

Charlotte Melin is Associate Professor and Director of Language Instruction in the Department of German, Scandinavian and Dutch at the University of Minnesota. Her publications include essays on high school-college collaboration and language program policy in ADFL Bulletin, as well as Poetic Maneuvers: Hans Magnus Enzensberger and the Lyric Genre (2003).

Rüdiger Mueller (Ph.D., Queen's University at Kingston, Canada) is Assistant Professor of German Studies at the University of Guelph, Canada. His areas of interest and research include foreign language teaching, 19th- and 20th-century literature, drama, Volksstück, and fin-de-siècle gender relations.

Jamie Rankin (Ph.D., Harvard University) is Senior Lecturer in German at Princeton University, where he coordinates language teaching and training in foreign language pedagogy for the department. He is the co-author of Handbuch zur deutschen Grammatik, an intermediate-level textbook, and has recently produced the new test bank for the first-year text Wie geht's? Recent projects include online proficiency/placement tests in German and publications in the areas of task design and interpretive classroom research.

Jennifer Redmann (Ph.D., University of Wisconsin-Madison) is Assistant Professor of German at Kalamazoo College in Kalamazoo, Michigan. She has published articles on Else Lasker-Schüler, German children's and youth literature, and foreign language pedagogy. She is currently vice-president of the Michigan chapter of the AATG.

Renate A. Schulz (Ph.D., Ohio State University) is Professor of German Studies and a faculty member and former director of the Interdisciplinary Ph. D. Program in Second Language Acquisition and Teaching (SLAT) at the University of Arizona. She has published widely on the learning and teaching of foreign languages and has given numerous presentations and workshops at professional conferences in the U.S. and abroad. She is a past president of the AATG (1990 and 1991) and former editor of the Unterrichtspraxis (1980–85).

Daren Snider (Ph.D., University of Utah) is Assistant Professor of German at the University of Nebraska at Kearney. His specializations are foreign language acquisition, German studies, and TESOL. He is a national program reviewer for the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) and a course facilitator for the German On-Line Distance Education Network (GOLDEN).

Dagmar A. Wienroeder-Skinner (Ph.D., Rutgers University) is Associate Professor of German at Saint Joseph's University. She teaches contemporary German literature, film and, culture, often in a European context, and was a 2002 recipient of the SJU excellence-in-teaching award. Her publications and research interests include pre- and post-unification literature and film, European cultural issues, and recent literary discourse on history and memory. She has presented regularly at national and international conferences and has been awarded grants from SJU, the Goethe Institute, and the NEH. She is a member of the AATG, GSA, NEMLA, and the German Society of Pennsylvania.

Helene Zimmer-Loew is Executive Director of the American Association of Teachers of German (AATG).